6. Write the last two stanza of the poem “ The Mouse And The Lion “ and name the poet.

The little mouse nibbled and gnawed and bit
Till the lion was finally free,
“it’s nothing, dear lion, don’t mention it:
I’m repaying your kindness to me
Nibbly, nibbly, nibbly, nibble,
Repaying your kindness to me.”

“For one of the lessons which mice must learn
From their whiskery father and mother
Is the famous old saying that one good turn
Always deserves another.
Pit -a-pat, grr, ohoho, squeak!
Always deserves another.”

The Poem is written by - Julia Donaldson
