Let's Travel

Modes of transport have changed with time. In ancient times people use to travel by foot from one place to another. After the invention of the wheel, carts were invented which was drawn by horses, mules and ponies. Rafts were used as water transport. Then slowly but surely different vehicles were invented. Modes of transport can be divided into three types – land, water and air. Air transport was later invented to carry passengers and goods and is the fastest means of transport. Water transport is the cheapest and oldest mode of transport. Use of petrol and diesel has made the air dirty.
