SYNOPSIS

This is a wonderful story of Walt Disney that was made into a beautiful movie called “ The Lion King” .

The sun came up over the African grasslands and herds of animals like the elephants, antelopes, giraffes, cheetahs , monkeys , zebras , rhinos and huge flocks of birds flew across the land and were heading for Pride Rock. They were all going there to celebrate the birth of King Mufasa and Queen Sarabi's son Simba.

On top of Pride Rock was Rafiki the wise old baboon who dipped his finger into a liquid and made a special mark on the little lion cubs forehead. Then Rafiki held Simba high up for all the animals to see .As soon as the animals saw the new cub a loud cheer rose across the plains , elephants trumpeted , monkeys screeched , zebras , rhinos and a host of other animals stomped their hooves . Then there was complete silence and all the animals then bowed down to their new prince little Simba . Only one member of the family did not attend that was Mufasa's brother Scar .Scar was inside his den ready to eat Zuzu the hornbill when Mufasa entered the den and asked Scar to drop the bird.

Now Scar hated Mufasa and he was very angry that Simba would become the next king and then Scar would never have a chance to rule. Mufasa told Scar he was expecting him to be there and give his blessings to little Simba as he was going to be the future king .Scar did not like this and turned his back on Mufasa and walked away . Days passed and Simba grew into a cute cub . One day Mufasa took Simba to the top of Pride Rock and showed him that everything the sun touched was their Kingdom and soon one day he would become King . But Simba asked his father about the shadowy place beyond which Mufasa told him never ever to go there.

But Simba being little and playful did not pay much attention. He saw a grasshopper and chased it excitedly. Mufasa then sat down on the Rock watching his happy little son and smiled.
